Social Credit Expert Sails for Canada

G. F. Powell, a colleague of Major Douglas who is coming to Alberta to report on the situation in this province with regard to social credit, sailed Saturday on the Aurania for Montreal. He was accompanied by G. L. MacLachlan, emissary of the Aberhart government, who has been in touch with Major Douglas.

It was learned that negotiations are continuing for selection of a colleague for Powell in his mission to Alberta. It is expected he will be chosen within a couple of days and will likely be a chartered accountant.

Regarded as one of the outstanding authorities on social credit, Powell has written extensively on the subject.

BASEBALL.

A meeting of baseball fans was held Tuesday night in an attempt to revive this old pastime in Didsbury.

A team will be organized of all local players and games will be arranged with neighboring clubs. Norman McLeod was appointed as manager and Ward Wyman coach, and they expect to be able to round up enough local boys.

Obituary.

Mrs. LENA ALBEHULN

At the Didsbury Hospital on May 29th, 1937, occurred the death of Mrs. Lena Albehuln of Sundre, Alberta, at the age of 44 years.

Mrs. Albehuln was born near Port Elgin, Ontario, on May 28th, 1893. In the year of 1901 her parents with their family moved to the Didsbury district and resided on a farm east of town. Later they moved to the Three Hills district.

In 1911 Mrs. Albehuln (then Lena Seibert) was united in marriage to Mr. T. A. Madoche. To this union were born five children, three boys and two girls. Lester and Dorothy died in infancy. Lucille (now Mrs. H. C. Bradford), David and Robert remain to mourn their loss. In 1925 Mr. Madoche died and Mrs. Madoche with her family moved to Didsbury.

On May 13th, 1933, Mrs. Madoche was married to Mr. Helmut Albehuln of Sundre. They resided at his home west of Sundre until her death.

Besides her husband and family she leaves to mourn their loss: an aged mother, Mrs. Lucy Seibert; six brothers, Gleason, Enoch, David, Walter, Harold and Jeremiah; four sisters, Mrs. W. D. Archer, Mrs. W. T. Watt, Miss Lulu Seibert and Miss Nora Seibert.

The funeral, under direction of the Durrer Funeral Home, was held from the M.B.C. Church, Didsbury, on Monday, May 31st. Rev. Oscar Snyder officiated, assisted by Rev. V. Schafer of Sundre. Interment was made in Didsbury Cemetery.

WEDDINGS

Pioneers Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Robertson Sr., of Westcott, two of the earliest and best known pioneers of the district, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding at their home on Wednesday, June 2nd.

There was a family gathering which was attended by their two sons and their families, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Robertson and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Palmer, of Calgary.

During the day a number of friends called to pay their respects and tender congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Robertson.

Mr. Robertson was born at Glenallen, Ontario, in 1866, while Mrs. Robertson was born at Moncton, New Brunswick, in 1869.

They both came west in 1884 and were married in Calgary on June 2nd 1887. They resided in Calgary for some years and moved to the east for six years.

They came to the Didsbury district in 1899 and took over Mrs. Robertson's father's homestead and established the "Brunswick Ranch," where they have lived since that time.

Arriving here before the town of Didsbury was established, for a few years they had to drive to Calgary to do their trading. From the small homestead of 160 acres they increased their holdings until now they have a finely equipped ranch of 1,800 acres. For several years they devoted their energies to raising horses, but 25 years ago went into the raising of purebred Hereford cattle and are counted among the leaders in Southern Alberta in raising this class of cattle, having been consistent exhibitors at the Calgary shows.

Mr. Robertson has done his part in the building-up of the community and took an active part in public affairs. For fifteen years he sat on the council of Beaver Dam M.D., for several years being reeve. Both Mr. and Mrs. Robertson were among the organizers of the Westcott United Church, to which they have given their support since its inception. Mrs. Robertson also is an active member of the Westcott W.I.

There were seven children born to their union, but only two sons, Jack and Alex survive, both of whom with their families live at Westcott. There are also six grandchildren.

We join with their many friends in offering congratulations and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Robertson many more years of married happiness.

Alberta Crop Report.

By Alberta Department of Agriculture

Edmonton May, 28.—Commencing May 22nd rains have been fairly general throughout the province. The crop outlook is therefore much brighter than earlier in the month when dry conditions were the cause of some concern, especially in the east central and southern districts. Amount of rainfall has varied from one quarter to almost two inches even within comparatively small areas, and benefits vary accordingly. All districts have had more or less rain with the exception of that portion of the south east from Youngs town south to Brooks and east to Schuler, and a small area north of the North Saskatchewan river from Waskatenau east to the boundary, where no rain has fallen for some time. Though present conditions on the whole are fairly good, there is little reserve of moisture except in the Peace River district, and crop prospects are dependent on precipitation at intervals through the growing season. The weather now continues showery.

A limited amount of damage from soil drifting previous to rain is reported by several districts from the U.S. boundary to Edmonton, some coarse grains still remaining to be seeded in northern districts. Summer fallowing has commenced in the south.

Growth of pasture, hay crops and range grass has been slow due to earlier dry conditions, but is now making rapid progress. Hay crops on the whole are likely to be light. Farmers are seeding more grasses and clovers this season, particularly in the centre and northern portions of the province.

The grasshopper hatch in the southern portion of the province has been checked by recent rains. Heaviest outbreak to date is in the Claresholm district. Mixing stations to supply poisoned bait are now in operation where required and the situation is under control. Some slight amount of cutworm damage is reported from a few points in the south.

Condition of stock is steadily improving with better range and pasture. Calf crop is reported short on the southern ranges with colts and lambs above normal. Reduction of hogs is evident throughout the province because of feed shortage and high grain prices. Dairy produce is increasing with good pastures, but is not yet up to the usual average.

Culture In The Country

Culture blooms in the country districts of the prairie provinces of Western Canada.

In the United States, Europe is popularly regarded as the fount of knowledge, of the source of the best in literature and the aesthetic arts. In Canada people are prone to look to the older lands and particularly Britain for inspirational direction and in the country districts of Western Canada there is a tendency to regard the cities as the seats of culture and wisdom.

But facts demonstrate the contrary to be the truth. On the farm and in the small town and village the search for wisdom and beauty is more keen than in the cities and it is there that birth is given to discriminating appreciation of the beautiful in the fine arts and this, despite the fact that opportunities for development of cultural attainments is restricted as compared with the larger centres.

It is true that in the cities one will find intellectual leaders and competent exponents of art, music and the drama. But where did they originate? In a substantial percentage of instances, the farm or the small town home will be found to have given them birth and is the source of at least their early education. Later, because of the necessity of finding an outlet for their activities they move to the cities and there is a steady infiltration of talent from the country to the urban centres. If it were not so, culture in the cities would eventually wilt of inanition and die for lack of revivifying material.

For even as the land is the original source of wealth, so also, is it the fountain of thought and culture.

As this new country becomes more and more stabilized one finds an increasing number of individuals and groups from country points capturing major awards at provincial and western music and drama festivals and often, where winners give city addresses, the credit should be given to the farm home or the small town school for the initial development of the talent they represent.

At provincial exhibitions one sees initiative expressed to a high degree in arts and crafts exhibits from small town and country schools and letters to the editor appearing in city dailies from correspondents at country points frequently reveal concentrated thought and discriminatory analysis to a greater degree than is found in effusions from city residents.

That this should be so need not occasion much surprise when comparison is made between the environment and life habits of the city dweller and the resident of the rural districts.

The country resident lives close to nature and has an unrivalled opportunity to study her manifestations. Indeed, to be successful, he must do so. He sits at the footstool of the greatest teacher mankind knows and, consciously or unconsciously, imbibes wisdom at the source. The natural laws that he learns here he must apply to his own operations. For this reason, if for no other, the dweller in the open evolves a process of deep thinking and pursues his studies to a definite conclusion. Such habits are naturally applied to the problems in which he takes an interest, whether they be those of his own business or in the wider realm of economics and social affairs.

This is the underlying reason for the close approximation to unanimity which usually marks decisions at farmers' conventions when questions of broad policy are up for discussion. The delegates have invariably given much thought in advance to the questions before them, have argued the pros and cons in their own minds, have come to a decision and know what they want.

In the cities life follows an altogether different trend. It is true that in his own business the city man has to think things through, but when it comes to wider social and economic matters, the average city man is more ready to accept the conclusions of others than to make his own. Not because he is afflicted with an inferiority complex but because, outside his own business, his interests are so diversified, that he spends little or no time attempting to solve questions of public policy to his own satisfaction. He sips a little of this and a little of that and in the process gathers little of solidity.

Montreal home owners have been the largest borrowers under the home improvement plan, but the use of the plan has been more widespread in Toronto, according to detailed figures made public by Hon. J. New Voyage Of Discovery

Scientist Hopes To Get Valuable Information For Navigators

An Italian sailor-scientist, is planning to sail around the world on a new voyage of discovery in a scientifically equipped ketch, which carries an auxiliary motor and plenty of room for scientific and photographic laboratories and a library on conditions of the seven seas. Captain Sorrentino hopes to prove not only that a single competent navigator can make his way through most of the stormy oceans of the world, but that such a voyage will give valuable information to navigators. He expects to give Italy extensive oceanographic, astronomic and other scientific data. Moreover, he will be equipped with still and cinema cameras to make a picture report of his travels.

Japan's Living Buddha

Conducted His Own Wedding Service Before 20,000 Guests

Performing his own wedding ceremony in the presence of 20,000 guests, Count Kocho Otani, the living Buddha of Japan and spiritual leader of 13,000,000 Japanese Buddhists, married a beautiful 19-year-old poetess in Kyoto.

The count, hereditary abbot of one of the largest Buddhist sects, celebrated ancient rituals that united him in marriage with Princess Yoshiko Tokudaiji, granddaughter of the famous Prince Kimihito.

To celebrate his marriage the count distributed 1,500,000 yen ($420,000) to the poor while his tall bride gave away 1,500,000 classical fans to the wedding guests and to other friends.

The bride wore 11 vari-colored kimonos, each on top of the others, surmounted by a short embroidered coat, for the ceremony.

Invisible Ray Worked

Stopped Four Cars On Lonely Road In England

The London correspondent of the Ottawa Journal tells this story: Some time ago one heard strange rumors of experiments by our military authorities with a Welshman invisible ray that was to furnish a complete reply to the new air peril. In the wilds of Wiltshire this strange story cropped up again with what seemed impressive corroboration of categorical detail.

My host, who has a cottage near Salisbury Plain, told me that friends of his were motoring across that desolate wilderness when suddenly without ostensible reason their engine came to a stop. Three other cars on the same stretch of road were similarly held up, and, like the one of which I got the details, were unable to find what was wrong with the works.

After a few minutes along came a police sergeant on a pushbike. He asked what was wrong, and was told the occupants of the car could not make out. Whereon he looked at his watch, and said: "Just get back in your car and wait. It will be O.K. in 10 minutes." And so it proved in every case.

New Insulin Preparation

Medical Scientists Of Toronto University Promise More Effective Treatment

Research medical scientists at University of Toronto have produced a new insulin preparation more effective in treatment of diabetes than earlier preparations, Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the university, now on a tour of western Canada, told an alumni dinner at Winnipeg.

The new "modification" of insulin is known as zinc protamine insulin, he said. It has been produced on a commercial basis by the Connaught laboratories, connected with the university, for the past two months.

Results showed that in most cases diabetics who used the new preparation had longer immunity from diabetic symptoms and required less frequent injections, Dr. Cody said.

Lady Astor's Mistake

British Woman Member Forgot Usual Procedure Of House

Little intricacies of procedure give even uneventful sessions a flavor of interest in the British House of Commons, says a writer in the Daily Sketch, who reports that even some members are not as well versed as they might be. For example, Lady Astor, the first woman to take her seat in the House, has been there for 18 years. Yet at question-time Lady Astor showed that she has not grasped—or perhaps she momentarily forgot—an essential rule of the game. She put a question to Mr. Morrison, the Minister of Agriculture, and he answered: "No, sir." "I'm not a sir," Lady Astor flashed back. What she overlooked was that Mr. Morrison's "sir" was not directed to her, but to the Speaker. No M.P. talks to another M.P. across the floor, but must always address the chair.

DICK GETS A NEW PARTNER

OF course, children should never drink tea or coffee. But do you realize that the caffeine in tea and coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too? If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly... caffeine may be to blame. Why not try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too... and may prove a real help.

Monster Telescope To Be Erected In California Will Weigh A Million Pounds

Albert Einstein and 100 other scientists watched the last bolt placed in the tube which will carry a 200-inch telescope mirror and they learned the great tube is going to be the world's first "sky cage."

It will not only house the big glass eye that will see 1,000,000,000 light years out into space—but its crew of astronomers will do everything but sleep in the moving tube.

As the tube swings across the sky, astronomers will work in a cage in its upper end, in a basket hanging beneath its bottom and in a big cylindrical room alongside its middle.

The telescope and its problems are so vast that for the first time the astronomical observers cannot readily stand outside and look through.

The telescope itself will be in some respect a more wonderful thing than any of the sights yet caught of stars and distant nebulae. The tube, about 75 tons, is a steel framework the bulk of a six-room house, and when its "top" is bolted on will weigh 87 tons and be as tall as a six-storey building.

Pressure of a child's hand will be able to swing this giant structure to and fro on its axis when it is finally mounted.

Furthermore the entire telescope when finished will weigh 1,000,000 pounds. Completed and set up on Mt. Palomar, California, the telescope alone will be a steel structure 4½ storeys high.

The astronomer riding the top will look directly at rays focussed from the 200-inch mirror 55 feet below him in the bottom of the tube. In the middle of the great mirror is a 40-inch wide hole and beneath this will be swung a basket in which other astronomers can ride. They will see the objects in the mirror after reflection back from near the top of the tube, down through the hole in the mirror.

The third crew of astronomical riders will be half-way down the tube, off to one side, where they can see reflections of stars brought from the big mirror by right-angled mirror arrangements.

Plans call for the telescope to be in operation in 1940.

Demand For Wool

Large Amount Now Being Used For Manufacture Of Uniforms

Two important woolen manufacturing officials of Boston said that "a considerable part of the wool supply of the world is consigned to armament purposes." They placed textiles alongside munitions in Europe's armament race.

An official of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers declared a large part of wool "already is in process of manufacture into uniforms. Some of it has not yet reached that stage. If conditions in the world become quieter this wool may be thrown back on the market for lay purposes with a resultant drop in prices."

The price of wool to-day, highest since 1928, can be traced directly, this same official said, to the busy looms of Europe.

The international labor office at Geneva reported to a textile conference in Washington this month that, in Germany and Italy "wool manufacturing is now facing the same scarcity of raw materials as cotton manufacturing. Programs stimulating home production of wool substitutes, and maximum recovery of used wools and waste, have been promoted energetically in both cases."

Just Matter Of Age

A German medical authority has expressed the opinion that persons possessing blue eyes live longer than those with brown. Another doctor agrees with him as to the longer life of the blue-eyed. Medical opinion in this country is, however, observing caution in this matter, refusing to generalize, putting forward the theory that eyes grow paler with age, which would make dark eyes relatively less common.

London's last British Industries Fair was the most profitable since 1928.

Well Known In England

His Highness Prince Aga Khan Understands Western World Politics

Perhaps the best known of representatives of British India at the Coronation was His Highness the Prince Aga Khan.

Remote descendant of Ali, cousin of the prophet Mahomet, Rt. Hon. Aga Khan is the spiritual leader of the Shiah sect, one of the two great branches of the Mohammedan faith. To his influence was largely due the loyalty of the Mohammedans of India during the years when there was so much unrest.

The Aga Khan is astonishingly learned, possessing a knowledge of almost every current European tongue, and a complete understanding of the politics of the races of the West.

He has lived for the most part in England and has made a position for himself there unique among the princes of India. From his own country he enjoys a tributary income of nearly $2,500,000 a year. His horses are worth at least $5,000,000 and his vast investments millions more.

In recognition of his great services during the war he was granted the rank of a first-class chief of the Bombay Presidency, with a salute of 11 guns. In 1930 and 1931 he was chairman of the British India delegation to the round table conference in London and in 1932 represented India at the world disarmament conference at Geneva.

Deduction May Be Right

New York Economist Thinks Machine Overrated As A Menace

People who believe that machines will ultimately become a Frankenstein's monster and ruin mankind can get a grain or so of comfort from the deduction of E. M. Anderson, New York economist.

For it is Mr. Anderson's contention that whenever new machines have inspired fears of technological unemployment, this period of apprehension has invariably been followed by an era of improved conditions for workers.

He points to the 1925-27 decline in the number of manufacturing workers, often cited as evidence of technological unemployment. These men were not thrown out of jobs, Mr. Anderson maintains.

The workers, he pointed out, were absorbed by other lines. There had been a great increase in service industries, for instance. Concern for the esthetic side of life was reflected in increased production of luxuries, and in a growth of school population, both trends that accounted for many of the workers.

All in all, if you take Mr. Anderson's word for it, the machine is sadly overrated as a menace. Sherbrooke Record.

Mother Goose Rhyme

Ancient Persian Design Depicts Cow Jumping Over The Moon

A 5,000-year-old Persian predecessor of the Mother Goose rhyme, "Hey, diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle, the cow jumped over the moon," was described by Dr. Phyllis Ackerman, archaeologist.

A similar incident of animal acrobatics is depicted in Persian designs dating as far back as 3,000 B.C., she told a meeting of the Institute of Persian Art and Archaeology.

"But the early eastern people didn't make patterns like that for fun," she explained. "They made them to encourage their hopes and quell their fears."

In the Persian design, which lacks only the fiddle, the cow hopping over the moon represented the triumph of heavenly forces and meteorological conditions favorable to crops.

"What's wrong about spelling cat k-a-t?" asks an eastern educator. On the other hand, what's right about it?

This would be a lovely world if men showed as much patience in all things as they do in waiting for a fish to bite.

Creating A Profession

Glaring Mistakes In Movies Call For Technical Advisor

Hunting movie boners, the game thousands of fans love to play, is creating a well-paid profession in Hollywood—the technical advisor.

A flood of critical letters now follows even a slight mistake on the screen. The theme of the writers is "how could you be so dumb?"

To-day inquiry disclosed that such an old-time subject as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police isn't being filmed any more until an expert looks over the script. Bruce Carruthers, an ex-mountie, just has finished this job for a two-reeler. He spotted two-score mistakes.

The first scene for the troop, while on horses, was to salute the flag. "The men do not salute mounted," suggested Carruthers, "they merely sit strictly at attention."

Another sequence called for the sergeant, on meeting a fur-draped girl, to declare, "that silver fox pelt sets you off like a million pounds."

"He should say 'dollars,'" the expert corrected. "No woman would like to look so heavy."

His final suggestion was not technically a part of his job. He happened to notice it and threw it in gratis.

A Scottish fur trader, Angus, was admiring a pelt and commented "finest I've seen in 20 years around here, mon."

All wrong, pointed out the expert. If Angus was a Scot and a trader, he would be sure to say, "Oh, I dinna know that it's such a good pelt. I've seen better many times."

Succeeded Second Time

Old Letter Gave English Captain Place At Coronation

Captain Haskett Smith, King's Messenger, and one of the most charming and cultured men one could meet anywhere, tells the romantic circumstances leading to his attendance at the Coronation as Gold Staff Officer. At the time of the preparations for the Coronation of King George V., he was abroad and only returned to England a few weeks previous to Coronation Day.

He hastened to send in his application to the Earl Marshal, but in reply received a kind note explaining that it was impossible at that late hour to include any further names among those to be summoned. At the same time he was advised that when he was an older man he should apply for inclusion among the guests at the next Coronation. For 25 years he kept this letter; and this year he sent it to the present Duke of Norfolk, son of the Earl Marshal, to whom he had previously applied. As a result Captain Haskett Smith took his place among the Gold Staff Officers on May 12.

Henry Pitkin, of Hartford, Conn., began the use of duplicating machinery for mass production of watches in 1838, but it was not until 1853 that a Boston watch company produced them in quantity.

Cash And Carry System Is Introduced In Bill To Keep U. S. Neutral In War

Long Speeches

Various Methods Used To Put An End To Tiresome Harangues

The little incident at a Swinburne commemoration meeting at the end of which the chairman informed a speaker that he was "going on much too long" may well raise again the question whether a tactful way of stopping a long-winded orator has ever been discovered. "A saint in the pulpit!" said a gushing woman to Bishop Stubbs after he had been suffering under a very long sermon. "And a martyr in the pew!" groaned Stubbs.

The "good" Lord Shaftesbury, however, most famous of Evangelical chairmen, made no bones about it. Seizing the orator firmly by the coat-tails he would say in widely audible tones, "My dear fellow, are you never going to stop? We shall be here all night."

The House of Commons has had various ways of dealing with prolixity, none of them very tactful. Far back in history we hear that "an old doctor of civil law spoke, but because he spoke too long and too low the House hawked and spat to make him make an end." In 1601 a Sergeant Heale spoke too long and was silenced at last by "hemming." A few years later it was necessary to condemn the practice of hissing. Cock-crowing was a method of a century ago. "Vide! Vide!" is the modern equivalent. — Manchester Guardian.

Visits Moose River

Alfred Scadding Again Sees Scene Of Mine Disaster

Alfred Scadding hobbled out of an automobile to see once again the mining community of Moose River, Nova Scotia, with which his name will always be linked.

Scadding, back at the spot where for 10 days a year ago he was entombed 141 feet underground with Dr. D. E. Robertson, Toronto, and Herman Magill, who died before draegermen released them, arrived in triumph. The townsfolk demanded he show them how he could walk. His toes were amputated due to "trench feet" suffered in his long entombment. Scadding obliged and was then placed in a car and driven through the town.

Rules Of The Court

When a bareheaded woman appeared in the witness box at Clarendon, South Africa, the magistrate, C. J. Lemmer, reprimanded her. Court rules, he said, required that a woman must wear a hat, and he added that no matter what the fashion of the moment might be, a woman must wear a hat in his court.

This Lace Stands the Test of Time

PATTERN 5850

Little stitches into Splendor grow—when it's a crocheted spread you're working on. Here's lace that stands the test of Time—just simple six-sided medallions that you crochet individually in string, and join for a stunning "repeat" design. Doesn't the thought of owning a dinner cloth of this make your fingers itch to get started? You can make smaller articles, too, using finer cotton. (In string, the medallion's 8½ inches from point to point.) In pattern 5850 you will find complete instructions for making the medallion shown; an illustration of it and of all stitches used; a photograph of the medallion in almost actual size; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., E., Winnipeg.

Using Substitute Flour

Germany's Move To Overcome Grain Shortage Causing Complaints

Substitute flour used in Germany to overcome the grain shortage has been the subject of complaints throughout the country, the official newspaper Korrespondenz said.

The Nazi party organ insisted that although the substitute was slightly darker in color and not as tasty as real flour, its nourishing qualities more than made up for its shortcomings.

The paper described three kinds of flour available in the reich. The first—type 502—is high quality flour, which must be used sparingly.

Type 8121, the second kind, is recommended by the newspaper for general use. It added that potato starch and corn starch had been added to this type of flour to make it whiter.

The third kind of flour—type 1050—has provoked some concern, "but it is better than its reputation," the paper said.

The World of Wheat.

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director "Crop Testing Plan."

The eyes of the wheat world at this moment are gazing anxiously at the crops now growing in the United States and in Canada.

The yield of the Canadian crop will depend mainly upon the rain that fell last fall, and that, in addition, will fall during the present growing season.

If this total precipitation should be up to the average, then the Western wheat crop will probably be of average size. (With certain allowances, of course, for damage from hail, insects, plant diseases, etc.)

What is the rainfall situation at this moment? Records from hundreds of rain gauges indicate that for Manitoba the total average precipitation, fall and growing season combined, now is 93 per cent of normal, for Saskatchewan 66 per cent of normal, and for Alberta 84 per cent of normal.

All this means that better than average rains will soon have to occur if an average crop is to be harvested. There is, however, still time for good rainfall to take place to overcome the deficiency, for the wheat plant does not begin to call for abundant moisture until after the middle of June. From that time forth, however, until harvest, its demands can only be described as prodigious.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Smaller winter wheat acreage in many European countries -- Private Indian wheat estimates reduced -- Excessive moisture in several European countries -- Rain still needed in Argentina -- Dry weather delays field work in Australia -- Holland purchases Rumanian, Turkish and Argentine barley -- Uruguay abolishes wheat import duty -- Morocco prohibits soft wheat exports.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Rains improve Canadian and U.S. crops -- Decrease in European buying power and in demand -- Russian spring seeding ahead of last year -- Wheat harvest begins and deliveries made in U.S. southwest -- France arranges wheat exports -- Estonian crops satisfactory and anticipate larger out-turns.

It is stated in a report by the federal department of mines and resources that more than 80 per cent of forest fires in Canada are the result of man's carelessness. The department has issued an appeal to save the forests, which last year produced national wealth estimated at $300,000,000. In 1936 forest fires destroyed more than 3,000,000 acres, representing a loss in timber and property values of more than $6,080,000, and a cost in actual firefighting of more than $1,200,000. Last year Canada's forest industry provided employment for some 200,000 men, paid approximately in wages $170,000,000.

Items of Interest

Canada's surplus wheat supplies, held by the wheat board, accumulating as far back as 1928, will be disposed of by the end of the present crop year, July 31, said James R. Murray, chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, on Friday. First hint of the winding up of the sale of the wheat came from Mr. Murray as he gave evidence before the Furgerson Royal Grain Commission. If a wheat board operated for the 1937-38 crop year starting August 1st next, it would start with a "clean slate as far as carry-over is concerned," said Mr. Murray in his evidence.

Through the generosity of the Carnegie Foundation, the fifth annual School of Fine Arts will be held at Banff, during August, 1937. It has been good fortune to secure the services of some of the foremost artists on the American continent, who will be prepared to offer intensive courses of instruction in Art, Music and Theatre. Believing that there is a growing demand for more instruction in the arts in Canadian Schools, particular attention is being paid to the needs of teachers and the problems they have to deal with in presenting educational programs in those fields.

If E. L. Gray should accept the Liberal leadership, it would be out regard for the province, and a desire to play a part in cleaning up the mess. According to all information obtainable, Mr. Gray has pulled the Irrigation district out of a bad position with conspicuous success. During his short period of service with the U.F.A. government in the field crops branch, he made a definite contribution to the province. His good judgment and organizing ability are known in Hanna district and wherever he has worked. Moreover he is a young man and an agricultural authority. But there seems to be no information on his past political affiliations, and it is doubtful if he ever had interest in politics for the sake of the game. If he should accept the nomination as leader of a renewed Liberal party, it would be at the sacrifice of an excellent position. It seems reasonable to believe that he would make such a sacrifice, confident that Alberta could be restored to a secure and sound position by wise administration. If the Liberals can further strengthen their lineup with other competent business men, they will undoubtedly recommend themselves to a great body of electors. — Vulcan Advocate.

Back To Nature

Despised Fly And Spider Are Useful To Astronomers

Astronomers still turn to the spider for one of the most necessary accessories of their meridian telescopes. For fine cross hairs, to stretch across the field of the telescope and mark the central line by which the passage of stars is to be gauged, there is nothing to excel a strand from a spider's web.

Even the unpopular housefly may furnish a serviceable part for a research instrument. An astronomer found a fly's wing useful in the construction of a delicate device for measuring the heat of remote stars. —April Coronet.

The sprinkler head was invented by Henry S. Parmelee of Connecticut in 1874. It consisted of a perforated head with a valve which was held closed against water pressure by a heavy spring made of low fusing material.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Took Close Calculation

To Get Canadian Pacific Ship Under Golden Gate Bridge

With masts clipped and added ballast in her holds, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain passed under the new San Francisco Golden Gate bridge.

The flagship of the Canadian Pacific steamship fleet, largest vessel yet to pass under the new span, cleared the arch with about 15 feet to spare.

Captain G. M. Parry, Nova Scotia-born commander of the 42,500-ton vessel, explained it took a lot of close calculation to enable his charge to enter the harbor. First it was figured when the lowest tide would be, then nine feet of mast were removed and the ship was loaded with ballast to make her ride deeper in the water. Safety nets strung under the bridge, where work is still in progress, were removed.

The clearance between the bridge and the harbor entrance is 220 feet at mean high water, but at low tide there are several additional feet of clearance.

Revenue From Carelessness

Misdirected Letters Netted U.S. Government About $230,000 Last Year

Carelessness of people in addressing their mail meant a profit of approximately $230,000 to the United States government in 1936.

Commenting on this, Burton Cowles, of the Washington dead-letter division, said: "The number of foolish mistakes people make is almost unbelievable." There were 12,250,000 misdirected letters during the past year, he said. Of those, 108,454 contained $96,326, not counting small change.

The government revenue from all sources of this nature, including sale of unclaimed packages, recovery of unused stamps and fees collected for returning misdirected letters, totalled $229,353.

The Strength Of Baldwin

His Speeches Will Sustain Comparison With Any Prime Minister

The strength of Mr. Baldwin has always been on his preaching side. Though he likes to figure as a plain business man and no orator, he is, in fact, an artist in words. Place his published volumes of speeches beside those of any Prime Minister during the past century, and they will sustain comparison in point of literary style.

More, he is an artist in emotions. His greatest oratorical successes in the House of Commons, from "Peace in our time" speech downwards, have always been achieved in cases where he could make timely appeal to a deep well of common sentiment, deeper normally in him than in his audience, but common enough to be capable at that chosen moment of appearing to them no less than to him to have the quality of an intimate native conviction.

But on the side of action Mr. Baldwin's strength was entirely tactical. Long-range strategy was not for him. To occupy (metaphorically speaking) strong ground; to lie low and hold your fire and not let yourself be tempted out by your assailant; and at the right stage in his proceedings to prostrate him by a volley timed to the moment—that was the Baldwinian formula. —London Spectator.

Intelligence Only Average

Scientific Rating Shows Horse Not As Clever As Supposed

"Horse sense" has been rated scientifically and found to be only average intelligence.

The popular conception of the brilliance of the equine mind was shattered by Dr. George Crile, director of the research laboratories of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, in a report to the American Philosophical Society.

He said the horse is neither smarter nor duller than other animals of its class.

The Shetland pony, however, is brighter than the average. So is the elephant. The pig is the class dunce, but the giraffe is almost as stupid.

The crow stands at the head of the class in the bird family. As might be expected, the head-hiding ostrich wears the fool's cap.

Dr. Crile made the intelligence ratings on an expedition to South Africa. They were arrived at by comparing the total weight of the animal or bird with the weight of its brain.

The planet Jupiter has nine moons, and each one requires a different length of time to make its trip around the planet. Some travel more slowly than others, while their orbits vary greatly in size.

Gardening

During the early part of the season, a little cultivation every week will help plants along wonderfully. The purpose is two-fold. Unsightly weeds are killed and valuable moisture is conserved. Growth is hurried along. Later on as the flowers or vegetables develop it will not be necessary to cultivate so often. Sometimes a mulch of short straw or grass clippings is used to retain moisture during the summer. This mulch is simply spread over the ground between the plants. It keeps the underlying soil moist, open and free from weeds.

The importance of good seed is impossible to over-emphasize. Other factors may be beyond control, but the gardener has absolute check over this foundation. Weather, soil and location may be ideal, but without good seed, especially selected to suit Canadian conditions, the garden is going to be a failure. There is no guarantee that a flower which has given wonderful results in Great Britain or the Southern States will do equally well in this country, and because of this the average gardener is well advised to secure his seed and nursery stock from a reliable Canadian source.

Many fine points can be considered when laying out a flower garden. Certain shades blend well together and often a whole bed will be selected with this blending in mind. Of course, for this sort of thing all the plants must bloom during the same period. Fragrance should be taken into account as there are some spicy things like Evening Scented Stock, Nicotina, Mignonette, Sweet Sultan and Verbena which, while rather plain as plants, fill the whole garden with a delightful incense, more especially in the evening. In shaded quarters, tuberous rooted Begonias, Pansies and wild flowers will do well. In fact they prefer this location to any other. In partial shade nearly every annual can be grown. On poor soil Portulaca is a favorite, as well as Alyssum, Sweet-scented Stocks, Linum, Calendulas, Calliopsis, Sunflowers, Schizanthus, Salpiglossis, Marigolds, Petunias and many others. These will also successfully resist dry weather.

Near the gate to the cemetery of Gettysburg is a signboard which stood throughout the entire historic battle. The sign reads: "All persons found using firearms in these grounds will be prosecuted with the utmost rigor of the law."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calmed but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

The next spring William Marshall was 21; and his father set him up in life after the fashion of the times. For livestock, he received with his father's blessing a yoke of young oxen, a heifer, due to calve later, and an elegant pair of small pigs. His farming equipment consisted of a wagon and its contents. There were a few bags of seed spring wheat and oats, some millet and seed potatoes. For tools he had, among other things, a crosscut saw, a rip saw, an auger, two cant hooks, logging chains, a cradle, and a keg of ironmongers' supplies. Early in the spring, his brother Maxwell went over with him, and the boys put in the first season's crop on the Marshall place. The cattle found good pickings in an old beaver meadow.

The large fallow of fallen trees was as dry as tinder. The lads made ready for the burning. Brush fire piles were laid in a hundred places and flaming torches of dry cedar passed quickly through the fallow. Within half an hour the entire field was a roaring mass of crackling flames shooting up to the sky in sparkling cones of fire. Great columns of whirling black smoke rose to drift in clouds over the valley for miles around. The heat was intense. Flames lit up the sky throughout the night and for days afterward the fire growled and smouldered in the great hardwood logs as it reduced them to powdery ashes.

Then the dirty work of making land began. The field was an ash pit with stumps sticking up in all directions and was littered over with half-burned logs and charred debris of the fire. The stumps could wait for a more convenient season. Scarred logs and great, cranky limbs were yanked into fresh piles, with much prodding of the rumps of the oxen, and the brandings were thus prepared for a fresh burning. Salty sweat stank on the young lads, who fought amid choking dust for every foot of farm land.

By the middle of May that spring the sower went forth to sow on the Marshall farm. The oxen pulled a triangular drag with wooden teeth in and out amid the stumps, scratching the black, inviting earth. The wheat was sown broadcast; and the drag did what it could to harrow the seed in. The oats and millet were sown next—and the land loved them. It was a slow, laborious task splitting cedar rails and fence-making to keep the cattle off the growing crops. And having done some of it myself, I speak with respect of the heart-breaking, back-hurting job of cradling lodged oats on a stumpy hillside. However, the harvest yielded two tidy stacks of grain; and they stood close to a log stable neatly thatched to keep the cattle and calf as snug the next winter as bugs in a rug.

In the fall of that year the first log-house was built on the Marshall farm, a one-roomed affair with a ladder to the loft; and it was up that ladder I climbed the first night I slept on the farm. The Marshall boys had wrought hard, early and late, whip-sawing out the rough planks for the floor and the sheathing for the roof. The shingles were cut on the job. Neighbors lent a hand at putting up the cabin.

Later in the fall, before his brother left him, William Marshall took a week off and went out to look himself up a wife.

CHAPTER V.

William Marshall walked across country by way of Woodbridge to the home farm on the 4th line of Markham; and there, nestled by an orchard, a warm welcome was awaiting him.

Poor, simple Willie Marshall! He was not faring forth to court a girl he loved. The mating season of his life was upon him and was hurrying him out a-hunting a woman to wife. He knew nothing of this specious, modern fiction that a man is only stirred to courting because of the witchery of some woman's charms. Neither, perhaps, did he realize that a youth out wife-hunting is as potter's clay in the hands of the first woman he meets who is also mating-minded.

The mysteries of sex influence are, of course, beyond the depth of a simple, old man, always living single; but somehow, old bachelors and bachelor girls spend a good deal of time musing on a subject about which they are supposed to know nothing. And why not? Religion, poetry and art are all saturated with its delightful influences. Heavenly Father, what a waste of driven snow a sexless life would be! The mystery of mating love may have its roots feeding in the earth out of which all life comes, but a flower is unlike the soil out of which it grows. I have observed a dirty-mouthed young scoundrel struck as mute and helpless as any honest minded lad by a slip of a girl with flat breasts and cheeks as white as milk. I have also observed a bold, bad woman, like Kitty O'Shea, fall desperately in love with a plain, pudgy little man, and be as timid and bashful about her love as any innocent, sweet country maid.

Romantic love had little to do with human match-making until a very recent date; and, even to-day, it seems to be, in the main, a home-smashing infection that catches idle men and silly women after they drift into the dangerous age of the forties. Farm has always married farm among the thrifty rural class in Europe—and the lad and the lass are thrown in with the acres. Bonds and mortgages marry mortgages and bonds among the town-dwellers; and the poor have always been lazy and listless in seeking far for their mates. Marrying love is distressingly mercenary among the Irish on the old sod. Unless she has a couple of Kerry cows for the dowry the emotional Celt demands that his bride be strong in back and legs for the carrying of the creels of turf. And after the songs are sung and the speeches made, something more enduring than love sickness is required to keep a home fire burning brightly in cabin or hall. Love of man and wife is a more sturdy plant. It is a cherishing, unselfish affection that pities, is long suffering and forgives. "To make a happy fireside clime for weans and wife, that's the true pathos and sublime o' human life."

The matter of finding a suitable wife for William became the subject of a lengthy and frank discussion between the young man and his parents. The matter was canvassed most diligently in the evenings, in that drowsy undertone in which folk discuss intimate things in the dark, after the others have gone to bed. Marriages may be made in heaven, but liveable ones usually require the services of kindly matchmakers, who discreetly steer the young man's fancy in a direction where a suitable girl is quietly waiting for the likes of him. Now, setting up house-keeping on a bush farm requires more than the cabin and a bride. There is also the bed and bedding, and the kitchen and other household gear the right sort of a father-in-law gives his daughter on her going-out from home. Local prospects were canvassed carefully, but without the Marshalls getting far in solving William's problem for him. Before he went out to work in service the lad had been too young to be on courting bent. Moreover, he had since been converted; and, after trial, had joined the Methodist Connexion. It was at a camp meeting at Hogg's Hollow, in a season of great power and glory, that he had been brought under the awakening of the spirit, and had been made the subject of saving grace.

Little Helps For This Week

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings. Ephesians 1:3.

Some murmur, if their sky is clear
And wholly bright to view,
And one small speck of dark appear
In their great heaven of blue;
And some with thankful love are filled,
If but one streak of light
One ray of God's great mercy gild
The darkness of their night.

The elements of happiness in this present life no man can command, even if he could command himself, for they depend on the action of many wills, the purity of many hearts. By the highest law of God the holiest must ever bear the sins and sorrows of the rest; but over the blessedness of his own spirit circumstances need have no control, for God has given unlimited power to every man to preserve his own happiness although there is in him something higher than that. He can do, without happiness, and instead find blessedness.

The Spruce Mite.

Mr. M. Weber has received a reply regarding the damage done to spruce trees in this district. The report is to the effect that there is considerable infestation of spider mite, but there is also some trouble that is caused by a somewhat alkaline soil condition. Unfortunately, little can be done to counteract the soil condition, but spraying with a lime sulphur spray will control the spider mite.

The spray should be put on usually about the second week in May, when the flowers of the spruce are commencing to shed their pollen freely, or if this is not convenient or a second spray being necessary, the second week in June is recommended. Thorough spraying is necessary, but the tree should not be drenched. Special care should be taken that the terminal twigs of the branches are covered by the spray, as it is at this point that the mite colonies collect. It is well not to spray when the temperature is above 80 degrees.

Dry lime sulphur should be used at the rate of 4 pounds of powder to 20 gallons of water, or approximately a 1/2 pound to 9 gallons of water. Dry lime sulphur is a standard product and can be obtained from firms handling insecticides or from paint manufacturers.
